The News.

From Washington we learn that all the endeavors of the Select Committee, or rather the minority of that Committee, to investigate the Kansas frauds, have been unsuccessful thus far, the opposition or Administration members being in the majority. Thus the object for which the Committee was designed by the majority of the members of the House—to expose the Lecompton frauds—may be defeated through the unjust partiality of Speaker Orr in the appointment of that Committee. Other interesting matters from Washington will be found in the telegraph column.

The Madison news this morning is interesting. Ex-Governor Barstow has been ordered into the custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms, for refusing to answer questions of the Investigating Committee, in relation to Railroad bonds said to have been received by certain members of the Legislature in 1856. Regan's bluff resolution requiring the committee to investigate alleged corruption of J. H. Knowlton in the Legislature of 1856, was discussed and indefinitely postponed. Details of the Legislative proceedings are of interest.

Two destructive fires had occurred in Boston on the night of the 16th.

The body of a man brutally murdered was found at Troy, and the supposed murderer arrested.

We have later intelligence from Kansas, and other important news, which will be found in their appropriate places.

Our commercial reports do not indicate any change in the markets, either at home or abroad.

Singular Coincidence.

Out of about thirty Democratic papers in this State, there are five that go in "for consummating (we quote from the Mil. News of the 20th of November last) a great outrage on the people of Kansas," i. e.—forcing the Lecompton constitution upon the said people; and, strange to relate, these five papers which now advocate the "outrage" above mentioned, are the only ones selected by the P. M. General to advertise the letting of the mail routes in this State—which advertisement is worth about $800 to each paper.

Gentlemen, haven't you sold yourselves cheap? Haven't you deserted and repudiated the old Democratic principle of "Squatter Sovereignty"—"The People Shall Rule" for which you labored so hard little more than two years ago—we ask, haven't you disposed of yourselves, in this matter, at a very low price? We don't know but 'twas enough, too, considering the quality of the articles.—Washington County Democrat.

We sympathize with the Democrat. It is, indeed, the organ of the Washington County Democracy; but it has got "off the track."—Nothing now passes for genuine Democracy that does not bear the "Lecompton" brand. "Popular Sovereignty." "the will of the majority," "the right of the People to rule," are all exploded and obsolete terms. Your Modern "Democrat" believes only in the Lecompton Swindle, is in favor of Slavery extension, and swears by Saint Buchanan.

An Open Bid for Votes.

The Washington Union (National Democratic and Administration organ) has an article on the Kansas question, in which the following propositions are advanced:

If there should be seen a single democrat to waver, suspicion of infidelity to the party must necessarily arise. The battle will be fierce, but it will not be lost. The Democratic party must be preserved!

If patriotic services deserve reward at the hands of the people when displayed on the field of battle, they no less deserve it when displayed in civil life. And equally true is it that the people always frown upon treason and cowardice. Who is a true friend to the administration that can hesitate to give his warm and cordial support to a measure which, like that referred to, promises so much good to the country?

There is no disguise, no ambiguous givings out, in this "official" announcement. It is an open bid for votes; a prefer, from the Administration, of "rewards" for those who sustain the Lecompton Swindle, and an unmistakable declaration that all who refuse to abide by this test are to be treated as cowards and traitors! How many Northern men will be dragooned, by such threats, into the support of the most infamous outrage in our history?

ANOTHER BOKER AND DEAN AFFAIR.—The Janesville Standard has the particulars of a matrimonial affair that occurred near Janesville last week, which very much resembles the celebrated Boker and Dean marriage in New York. Here is the Standard's story:

"A young lady, highly accomplished, of superior education, and beautiful withal, the daughter of a Director of the Suffolk Bank of Boston, has been spending a few months with some of her friends in Emerald Grove. In the employ of the gentleman with whom she was sojourning, was a native of the Emerald Isle, a man for ought we know, of good reputation, but possessing none of the refinements of the coachman of the Boker family of New York City.

The acquaintance between this man and the Boston belle, soon ripened into intimacy, and an elopement was the consequence. Taking the foot line to Shopiere, the twain procuring the services of an officer, were soon made "flesh of one flesh," and are now, we learn, enjoying love in a cottage, where, although not surrounded by the refinements and luxuries which adorn the mansion of the bride's father, they rejoice that love will sometimes o'erleap the bounds of prejudice and bring the extremes of society into matrimonial embraces.

We can well picture the astonishment and indignation which will overspread the features of the aristocratic old father, when he hears of the erratic course and peculiar taste of his fashionable daughter. But he must learn that, if bolts and bars, are insufficient to confine Cupid within their strongholds, the barriers existing between the Celtic and the Anglo American races are as brittle as the spider's web."

A VOICE FROM MAINE.—The Augusta Age, the leading Democratic paper in Maine, reviews, at length, the President's Lecompton Message; dissents from all its positions; and thus prophecies as to its results:

"It is certain to annihilate the Democracy of the North—to overthrow the Democratic party of the Union, and to throw the government into the hands of Black Republicans in 1860."

CONSEQUENCES OF A SHAM BATTLE.—A sham duel recently took place near Philadelphia, between two young men named de Charmont and Sheridan. The balls were drawn by the seconds from the pistols before they were handed to the combatants, a fact of which Sheridan was aware. As the pistols were fired, Sheridan fell, and De Charmont, fearing the consequences, fled to parts unknown, and has not since been heard of.

The Lake Shore Railroad Bonds.

In my reply to the communication of the Comptroller, I intended to supply the suppressions which were material to the cause of the Milwaukee and Chicago Railroad, and forbear that exposure that I should have made, had I not been inclined to regard his fault as an unintentional omission, that the weakness of the individual might innocently commit.

Subsequent events have satisfied me, that in my charity for the Comptroller I failed to do justice to the road, and I solicit the indulgence of your columns, for a more full explanation.

The City of Milwaukee loaned her bonds to the Milwaukee and Chicago Railroad Company, in 1854, in the sum of $200,000, in aid of this road. To indemnify the city, the company issued and delivered to the city, a like amount of bonds—and by the provisions of those instruments, the Railroad Comp any was to pay the interest coupons of those City Bonds, and to pay the bonds at maturity.

The Railroad Company, by Thomas Williams, President, made a contract for the construction of this road with E. F. Bishop, J. W. Stewart and Levi Blossom, who were to accept these bonds in part payment. Shortly after the work was begun, the enterprise became embarrassed by the failure of Mr. Schuyler, of New York.—The energetic and persevering Mr. Blossom, went to New York and raised upon the credit of the road and of the contractors a large amount of money, and to relieve the necessities of the enterprise, purchased fifty thousand dollars in Virginia stocks, and returned to Milwaukee and applied to the Common Council for the balance of the issue of City Bonds. The Common Council was so deliberate in action, that Mr. Blossom's patience became exhausted, and he retired from the enterprise, leaving the completion of the road to his co-contractors. This balance of bonds, however, was afterwards delivered by the city to the company, which completed the issue of two hundred thousand dollars.

Immediately after Mr. Blossom's departure, the Railroad Company was notified not to pay the interest on certain ten thousand dollars of these bonds, by a party who claimed that he was the lawful owner of them, and that they had been fraudulently obtained from him. With this notice served upon the company, it would not have been safe for the company to have paid them, for the company might be liable to pay them again to the true owner. Fortunately, however, while all the rest of the bonds have been presented and paid semi-annually since 1854, these particular bonds have been withheld so long as to become mysterious; and it has been reserved for the diligence of the City Comptroller, since Mr. Blossom's return, and after four years disappearance of them, to make their discovery, and to present for payment bonds that the public had been cautioned against receiving, in the public prints, and which the company had according to law, been notified not to pay.

Had the persevering Comptroller stated in his communication who the parties were, who held these bonds, and that he was informed of the reason why the company had not paid them, instead of adding to the mystery, by serving the notice on the late President of the road, "that unless the Co. paid them, he would present the subject to the Common Council," he might have exposed himself less to suspicion of lending himself to parties for their collection, who have too much prudence to undertake it themselves. No turpitude is intended to be imputed to the Comptroller, but only that simplicity of conduct for which he may conceive himself quite fortunate to avoid the appearance of being ridiculous.

I am authorized to state that the Railroad Company has the funds to pay the interest on these bonds, when it can be done with safety, and are ready to defend the city against the attachment proceeding, and save it harmless from all dangers and costs, and to pay the interest on the Bonds when the Court shall decide to whom it is proper to make payment.

C. K. WATKINS.

EX-GOV. BEBB ACQUITTED.—The trial of Ex-Governor Bebb, for manslaughter, commenced at Rockford, Ill., on Thursday last, and the case was given to the jury on Monday afternoon, who, after retiring for a short time, returned a verdict of not guilty. The facts, as developed in the testimony, did not differ materially from the statement of them at the time of the unfortunate occurrence which led to the trial.

LATEST FROM KANSAS.

Correspondence of the Missouri Democrat.

LAWRENCE, K. T., Feb. 8, 1858.

The session of the territorial legislature will close this week. It is limited to forty days by the organic act. There has now an immense amount of half completed business before it, and many of its most important measures seem likely to go by default, in the great "rush of the work at the end of the session." The majority of the members are now men, inexperienced in public business, and they undertook altogether too many things to do any of them well.

The Topeka legislature meets again on the 10th inst. At present it seems likely to go on and frame a code of laws; but our public affairs are now in so unsettled a state that it is unsafe to prophesy about anything more than two hours ahead of us.

We have had several spasmodic attempts at hail storms during last week, but nothing will pass for genuine winter. Unless we have some cold weather soon, the people of Kansas will have to go without ice altogether next summer, or import it from some region nearer the north pole.

The recent action of the legislature, in "permanently" locating the territorial capital at what is called "Minneola," is receiving a great deal of ridicule. There is not a single building of any kind on the town site of Minneola. It is right out on the open prairie, twenty miles south from here. Under the provisions of the bill, the functions of government are to be performed there from, and after March 1st.

The legislature was elected purely on a Free State issue. No one dreamed that it was to permanently locate the capital. Nearly half the territory is unrepresented in it. The utmost that it could have done with propriety in the matter, would have been to take the sent of government from the infamous nest of nullifiers at Lecompton, and remove it temporarily to Lawrence, Leavenworth, Topeka, or somewhere else, where there are some accommodations for it, until the people could locate it, either by electing a legislature on that issue, or better still, by a popular vote.

The commissioners appointed by the legislature to investigate the election frauds, have adjourned to Leavenworth. They will not complete their work in season to report to this session of the legislature; but when the full result of their labors is made public, they will show up in authentic shape the most systematic and damnable series of outrages ever practised upon any people.

No doubt the letter writers generally tell you that John Calhoun, Jack Henderson, and others of that class, will never dare return to Kansas. Don't believe it. Just as long as these men know they are backed by the administration and the troops, they will come here whenever they please, and they will continue their practices until the too patient people get tired of the forbearance policy (as they will, one of these days,) and set an example by hanging two or three of them right up without judge or jury. If the Calhoun constitution passes Congress, and they attempt to enforce it upon us, I believe this will be done.

St. Louis, Feb. 16.

Late advices from Kansas state that a party of Lane's men had visited Westport, Missouri, in search of Mr. Danforth, a member of the Lecompton Convention. The Missourians made no resistance.

Stofer, the Democratic Representative from Leavenworth county, is recovering from the wounds received in the late attempt to murder him.

The grocery of Pat. Laughlin, who killed Collins at Doniphan, a year or two ago, was broken open during his absence, a few nights since, and its contents burned in the street.

A skirmish is said to have taken place at Ft. Scott; no particulars are given. Gov. Denver has refused to send troops there.

RESULT OF THE FOURTH WARD ELECTION.—Hiram R. Bond was elected yesterday to fill vacancy in the Board of Aldermen for the Fourth Ward, caused by the removal of Taylor, by 122 maj. over John Mitchell, the nominee of the Democratic caucus. The News tried very hard to elect Mr. Mitchell, by appealing to party prejudices, but the people resolved not to be blindfolded by party influence, and they triumphed. This is an excellent beginning, and it is to be hoped that the same spirit will be carried out by the tax-payers throughout the city at our next municipal election. We congratulate the residents of the 4th ward in securing a representative in the city Council whose ability and integrity entide him to their confidence.

The whole number of votes polled was seven hundred.

RECAPTURE OF TWO PRISONERS WHO ESCAPED FROM COLUMBIA COUNTY JAIL.—The News of yesterday publishes the following extract from a letter received in this city from Sheriff Lewis, giving an account of the recapture of the convicts, Harrington and Mitchell, the former of whom, it will be remembered, made his escape, in company with the murderer Underhill, on the 14th of January, and the latter from the Court room at Portage, while he was being tried last fall:

"It is with pleasure that I take this opportunity to inform you, of the success with which I have continued the search for the escaped prisoners of the 14th of January. Underhill has been in irons since his return, and will remain so till I got through with him.

On Friday night last, Mr. Graves (Under-Sheriff) and myself, went to the house of a brother-in-law of Harrington's, and found him in company with his brother-in-law and sister. I burst open the door at 11 o'clock at night, and as the door opened, Harrington made an effort to hide under the bed, but it did him no good; he came back with us and is now safe in jail.

You will, doubtless, remember the escape of Wm. Mitchell, from the Court Room in this place last fall, while on his trial, charged with seduction. He went to the Sothern States, but came back to his house on the night of Friday last, where he was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Burdett, after quite a struggle, in which Mitchell, with a sword, struck a Mr. Johnson, a gentleman who has been engaged in this part of the State, procuring subscriptions to railroad bonds. Mr. Johnson's residence is at Beaver Dam, Dodge county. He was one of the posse summoned by Deputy Burdett to assist in the arrest. Mr. Johnson received one blow from the sword on his arm, cutting a gash more than three inches long, and another blow on the head, through a heavy cap, cutting into the head three inches or more, and fracturing his skull badly. Mitchell was secured, and is now in irons, and knows where he can look for his board.

We have eleven now in jail—three for murder, one for seduction, one for rape, one for adultry, one for burglary, one for riot, one for petit larceny, two for default of paying fines, and room for more."

THE RECENT ROBBERY AT HALE'S CORNERS.—In speaking of the robbery of the pedlar's wagon at Hale's Corners, and the arrest of the thief Nowell, the Waukesha County Democrat says:—A gentleman from New Berlin informs us, as soon as the news spread that the goods had been found, very many of the people residing in that vicinity assembled and commenced a thorough search of the whole premises, and found stolen property hidden in several places. The chief repository was a square hole cut in a hay stack, and it was full of all sorts of traps which the neighbors had missed during the winter. Our informant says it was laughable to see a poor old Frenchman from whom some hams were stolen, the only meat he had provided for the summer, leap and caper for joy when they were drawn out of the hole. There had been suspicion for some time that the Nowell's were pilfering about the neighborhood, and several were on the look out for them.

MILITARY EXCITEMENT.—Madison is all alive with military enthusiasm since the Convention was held there. The Patriot says:—We have to thank the MILWAUKEE LIGHT GUARD for occasioning a spirited feeling to pervade the young men of our city. The Governor's Guard is already organized, and in certain stores about town, several smart young men look an inch taller than they did a month ago. We also hear of a German Artillery Company in course of formation, and a rumor concerning the embodiment of some enthusiastic sons of Erin into a crack light infantry company. We believe that this Milwaukee inoculation will be of much benefit to our young men. It will promote ideas of system and order, and treading up to the time will lead them respectably through the ordeal of civilized life.

ANOTHER NEW PAPER AT WATERTOWN.—Watertown is getting to be a great place for newspapers. It is but a few days since we chronicled the receipt of the first number of the Representative, a lively six column paper just started there. Another new newspaper, hailing from the same burgh, now lies upon our table. It's name is the Independent. In size, it is about 10 by 12 inches, and is published weekly by an association, in the fourth story of the Independent Block, Watertown, Wisconsin. It contains a number of spicy articles, the leaders being—"Can a follow get tight on lager beer?" "The Red Petticoat" and "More Lager."

Long may it wave!

DOGS.—It has long been a mooted question, what dogs are good for. We are glad to notice that they are being made to act a part in the great drama of life—their part being developed since the present sleighing. Almost every boy one meets in the street now-a-days is followed by his mastiff attached to a sled or miniature cutter, and the dogs appear to take to the business as naturally as life. We don't know to what extent the dog can be made to act the horse's part, but if the canine species can be put to any good use, we shall rejoice therent.

TRUSTEES OF THE FEMALE COLLEGE.—Wm. P. Lynde, O. H. Waldo, and Wm. J. Whaling, were elected yesterday to fill vacancies in the Board of Directors of the Milwaukee Female College. Mr. Whaling takes the place of Eliphalet Cramer. The other directors were reelected.

BRICK HOUSE FOR SALE.—FILLMORE offers a great bargain in a brick house in the 7th Ward. He will make a barter trade with some person desirous of obtaining a homestead in one of the best wards of the city.

Letter from Michigan Lake Shore.

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 12th, 1858.

EDS. COM.:—In reading your paper of yesterday, I find an article headed "Where is our Ice to come from for next Summer's use?" There has been the same cry in our city during the entire winter, but within the past ten days we have had very cold weather, and the ice has formed to the thickness of six or eight inches, and is being harvested by our ice dealers, in large quantities; they intend to be able to supply, in large qualities, dealers from other points.

If the dealers in the Queen City want to make arrangements by which they can get a supply for the coming summer, Milwaukee is the place; the ice can be put into vessels during the cold weather, and leave early in the spring for Toledo, and be reshipped on the canals without very great expense.

I have no interest whatever in the sale of ice, not even being acquainted with the dealers here, but knowing what a luxury ice is to the citizens of the Queen City, and how unpleasant it will be for them to do without it, take the liberty of writing you on the subject.

The amount of Cincinnati manufactured goods, groceries and other articles from Cincinnati, four years ago, did not amount, probably, to over fifty thousand dollars, when now they reach very near five hundred thousand dollars; the amount of goods brought to this Northwestern country is enormous. A large proportion of these goods might just as well come from Cincinnati as not, and would, if the merchants of your city would make an exertion for it.

The running of through freight trains on the Cincinnati and Indianapolis R. R., has done much towards towards taking trade to Cincinnati from this country. Long may the C. & R. I. Company live.

Yours, truly,
A MILWAUKEEAN,
Formerly a Cincinnatian.

The above letter appears in the Cincinnati Daily Commercial, of Monday last, and is commended by the editor of the Commercial to the notice of the Merchants and Manufacturers of that city. Our Milwaukee Ice-dealers will do well to give the matter their early attention.

THE CAMPBELL MINSTRELS LAST NIGHT.—The first performance of the Campbell Minstrels, at Young's Hall, last night, was attended by a very fair audience, and the entertainment proved to be a most interesting one. The performance of Messrs. Rumsey and Newcomb, as also that of several of the other minstrels, was loudly encored.

They are by all means the best Ethiopian musicians that have ever visited our city. They give two more entertainments this and to-morrow evenings. If our readers would enjoy a hearty laugh, and a real musical treat, we would advise them so go and see the Campbells.

MILITARY BALL AT CHICAGO.—The Chicago Light Artillery, Capt. JAMES SMITH, gave their first Anniversary Ball, on Tuesday evening last. They had kindly extended an invitation to the Light Guard of this city, to attend their festival, and a delegation of the Milwaukee Light Guard left here, Tuesday afternoon, to avail themselves of this civility. The ball was given in the Light Guard Hall, a spacious apartment, which had been appropriately decorated for the occasion. The attendance was numerous; the music inspiriting; the supper substantial; and everything complete. The delegates from Milwaukee, were received and entertained with a warmth and cordiality, that cannot be described, and will not, we fear, be easily repaid.

INVITING TO EPICURES.—We saw, yesterday, at the "Home," the finest and fattest Mutton, Veal, and Beef, that Wisconsin has yet produced, to our knowledge. The Mutton came from Layton and Plankinton, who have just killed some 22 fat sheep, raised on their farm, and weighing, dressed, from 100 to 140 pounds. The Veal was fatted and killed by Nunenmacher, and the Beef, by his next neighbour in the Market Hall, Market Square. If this choice meat is not all gone by this morning, we advise epicures to go and take a look at it.

Hezekiah Cunningham, against the City of Milwaukee. Defendant had leave to annul complaint, and the case was continued upon payment of costs.

Samuel Lumsden et al. against the City of Milwaukee, judgment restraining defendants perpetually. Samuel Lumsden against the City of Milwaukee, appeal from report of street jury, appeal dismissed without cost to either party.

Amos Sawyer, against James Lever, trial proceeding.

A CASE OF DISTRESS—APPEAL TO THE FIREMEN.—JOHN JORDAN, for several years a faithful and efficient fireman, though not now connected with the Department, is suffering from a bruised leg, which incapacitates him for work, and thus makes it impossible for him to earn a living.—He is thus necessarily dependent upon charity for support and medical attendance. Not being a member of the Fire Department he cannot be relieved from their Fund; but an appeal is made, in his behalf, to the Firemen, and contributions, however small, solicited. Those who are disposed to give will please call on Mr. HENRY MIDDLETON, Wisconsin Street, opposite the Custom House, who will furnish any information that may be desired.

FIRE YESTERDAY.—A small wooden house, of not much value, was burned down yesterday morning, about 9½ o'clock, in Milwaukee street, just north of the Gas House.

The house that was burned was worth some $200 or $300, and belonged to Mr. Brew. It was occupied by a man named Regan, a painter, and another man named Cooper. The loss to each of those is about $200. The adjoining house belonged to Jim O'Brien, brother of Tim's, and it was injured some $50 worth.

THE SNOW—GOOD SLEIGHING.—The snow keeps sifting down, an inch or two a day, and there is now enough on the ground to make capital sleighing. In the woods, the snow lies nearly a foot in depth. This gives a good warm coating to the frozen earth, and helps farmers, teamsters and others. Thus far, February has been a genuine winter month.

POLICE COURT YESTERDAY.—R. Gerald was fined $5 for being drunk and disorderly, and Morris Riley the same amount for being intoxicated; Mary Higgins was fined $5 and costs, and John Schneider $1, for similar offence.

Charles Brown was examined on a charge of larceny and found not guilty. Patrick Ryan was convicted of larceny and sentenced to 30 days imprisionment in the county jail.

A CASE JOB.—L. J. HIGBY advertises for proposals for getting off the schooner Brilliant now ashore about 6 miles south of Sheboygan. Here is a chance for some Milwaukee man to make money.

$10 REWARD.—This amount is offered the finder of a gold bracelet which was lost on the evening of the 10th ult. See Advertisement.

Attempts to Stifle Discussion.

The increasing efforts of the Administration party, to stifle, all discussion of the Lecompton Swindle, is significant of the injustice of their cause. The N. Y. Enquirer, thus speaks of the recent attempt to prevent Gov. STANTON, WALKER and others from addressing the free Democracy of New York, and upon the Administration outrages of the rights of the People of Kansas:

The anti-Lecompton meeting which was to take place at the Academy of Music last evening, was prevented by the arbitrary refusal of certain persons, connected with the management of the building, to open the building in accordance with a previous agreement made by their agent in writing, and completed by the payment in hand of the price demanded for its use. The most active efforts were made to break up the first arrangement, and thus prevent the meeting; and they were successful. Thousands of as intelligent and worthy men as can be found in this community were debarred from coming together to obtain information and express their sentiments upon a subject of transcendent importance to the country. The object was to stifle discussion and preclude the light.

In spirit it is the same as that which caused the printing presses of Kansas to be thrown into the Kaw and the Missouri—which dictated the resistance in the last Congress, to the appointment of a Committee of Investigation into the frauds and the violence of the Kansas elections—which incited the personal violence upon Mr. Sumner and upon Mr. Grow for freedom of utterance—which has impelled Mr. Orr to form an Investigating Committee, the majority of which, contrary to all parliamentary precedent, are opposed to investigation. It seems to be fated that arbitrary repression shall, from beginning to end, be the system everywhere employed by those who oppose free Kansas. [Secretary Stanton, it was known, was both predominantly qualified and particularly prepared to unfold the iniquities that have been practised upon the Free State men of Kansas, and hence the most extraordinary, high handed means have been adopted to deprive him of the opportunity.

Every intelligent and fair man in this city, will know well how to characterize such conduct.—It is, we are disposed to think it a great mistake to suppose that this act will have its intended effect. Secretary Stanton will yet speak in New York, and the discreditable means which have been taken to prevent him will only re-act in his favor, and give additional interest and force to all that he may have to say. It is perfect folly to imagine that the disaffection with the Administration which is getting so rife among the Democratic party of New York can be arrested and turned back by the use of any such means as have been employed to obstruct the influence of Secretary Stanton. Honest men will scrutinize and canvass the dealings of Mr. Buchanan towards Kansas, and the greater the effort to prevent this the more resolute will be their determination to do it faithfully.

The Select Committee.

Eight members of this Committee, says the New York Tribune, have done their utmost to defeat the investigation which the House has ordered, while but seven have favored that investigation. Col. Orr, in effect, gives Mr. Stephens the control of this important Committee, knowing him to be intensely hostile to its objects and its creation. Mr. Stevens, with the hearty sympathy of the Speaker, did his utmost to defeat the raising of this Committee; but the House ordered it in spite of him; and now Col. Orr, as Speaker, gives Mr. Stevens a majority on the Committee—in effect telling him to frustrate and smother the investigation, which he failed to prevent.

We do not believe the Lecomptonites will gain anything, at last, by this violation of all Parliamentary rule and courtesy; but it imposes on their opponents in the House an obligation of incessant watchfulness. Should a dozen anti-Lecompton Members absent themselves for a few days, there is no security that Stevens may not abruptly close the investigation, report the bill and rush it through (that is, into and out of) Committee of the whole, and try to put it forthwith on its passage under the screw of the Previous Question. The Republican who is absent unpaired for a single day henceforth, until the fate of the Calhoun Conference is sealed, in effect betrays his constituents and exposes the cause of Free Kansas to an ignominious defeat. Emphatically in this case is "Eternal vigilance the price of Liberty.

Mr. Speaker Orr.

The unfair, and unparliamentary conduct of Speaker Orr, in appointing the Select Committee under Mr. Harris' resolution to investigate the facts and frauds of the Lecompton Constitution, meets as a matter of course the unqualified approbation of the Administration Organs. The following quotations from an article in the St Louis Leader, upon the subject are decidedly significant:

"We commend the excellent judgment and good taste of Mr. Orr in the selection of this important Committee.

* * * * *

On the other hand, the Democratic side presents an array of talent seldom concentrated upon a single Committee."

Comment upon this is surely unnecessary.

A FIGHTING CLERGYMAN.—MET THEIR MATCH.—The Wisconsin Pinery mentions a little affair that came off in Plover. There having been a revival there, and some young bloods having fancied themselves insulted by the preacher, they procured a black snake whip, proceeded to the Reverend gentleman's premises, called him out, and undertook to square accounts by the application of the snake to his Reverence's back. With quick perception, and a good share of bodily as well as mental vigor, the gentleman parried off the blows, retreated to the house, armed himself with a good shillelah, and being reinforced by a couple of Reverend friends, one with a gun, and the other with a pitchfork, compelled the assailants to retreat, without effecting the settlement in the manner they had proposed.

"While on my way to Winnebago yesterday, I found Winchell, the Professor, on board, who was on his way to Warren. While conversing with him, and when about two miles from Rockford, I was not a little surprised to hear the steam whistle. I looked out to see what was the matter, when Winchell touched me on shoulder, and told me that he was blowing the whistle, and wished me to keep my eye on the conductor, who at the time was conversing with a gentleman. Winchell had no sooner imitated the steam whistle than the Conductor looked surprised, and as it continued to blow he went to the door and looked out. As he returned he remarked to a person "I don't know what makes the engineer blow the whistle at this time." Winchell kept the thing to himself, so that the Conductor was not aware of the trick."

Funeral of the Late Geo. H. Simonson.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.

The funeral of Geo. H. Simonson, who was murdered on Saturday evening, was attended this P. M. by an immense concourse of citizens, including a large number of the Sons of Malta. Previous to the funeral services, at least 3,000 persons visited the late residence of the deceased.

Preparations against Canton.

HONG KONG, November 26, 1857.

It is perhaps fortunate that the decisive attack upon Canton has been delayed until the accredited representatives of all the chief powers interested are present, and each sustained by some show of naval force.

The Hon. Mr. Reed arrived on the 5th inst., and the Russian Embassador, the Count Putiatine, shortly after. The latter has succeeded no better than his brother Embassadors, he not having been allowed access to the Imperial city. We hear that ere long he is also to be backed by a powerful fleet. The second detachment of the gun-boat flotilla from England has safely arrived—with the exception of two boats which put into Singapore. The whole fleet of them (called the Mosquito fleet) numbers about thirty. In all there cannot be less than 60 or 70 vessels of all kinds—most of them steamers.

The Imperador arrived about three weeks since, bringing 500 marines; the Imperatrix came in a week after, with 600 more. Sundry troop ships have also made their appearance, and to-day the Princess Charlotte, three decker, brings 300 additional marines. On the 20th and 21st, the main body of the English fleet moved up the river toward Canton, taking a large landing force of marines and artillery.—There are now about 7,000 men who can be landed without detriment to the efficiency of the fleet.

A proclamation has been printed in Chinese characters, the contents of which is not public, but from one conversant with the matter, I learn that its intent is to warn well-disposed Chinese to leave the city within a certain time, and take their property with them so far as it can be done.

Whatever may be said of the war, it must be admitted that Admiral Seymour has, in all its history, shown himself as merciful as prompt, and it is to hoped that this proclamation will afford the means of escape to many, and cause the devastation to fall upon those who deserve it.

From an officer of the fleet, I learn that in the course of two days the gun-boat flotilla will take position encircling the water front of the city, at a distance of five hundred or six hundred yards each from the other. Then the proclamation will be freely circulated within the city, and the prescribed time be allowed to elapse.

If no proposals for a peaceable surrender are received in the meantime, there will open upon the devoted city such a storm of rockets, shot and shell as never entered the hearts of Chinamen to conceive. Each of the gun boats carries one ten inch shell-gun aft, and one thirty-two pounder forward; and as the crews are all picked men and well trained at the guns, their fire is both rapid and effective. Most of the larger steamers can also take up position within shell range, and will take part in the bombardment.

That the French forces will co-operate with the English, is a generally understood fact; but is equally understood that this co-operation will not extend to a combined attack upon the city. Half the moral effect of the capture would be destroyed by such joint attack. It has been the boast of the Chinese ever since the ransom of the city at the close of the last war, "Englishmen no can catchee Canton." Hence the necessity that Englishmen alone should take Canton without the aid of any other power. The French fleet, therefore, will probably take up position at or near Whampoa, near enough to the scene of action to show their approbation, but not participating in the attack.

Major-General Ashburnham, the Commander-in-Chief of the land forces in China, has gone hence to Calcutta; the object being to give the whole charge of the campaign into the hands of the Admiral. The French fleet numbers twelve vessels, all steamers.

The American fleet is in this port, the Levant having been lying here three or four months.—The Portsmouth, Minnesota and San Jacinto have arrived within the last four weeks. What they are here for is a matter of some surmise.—It is shameful that the United States should not make common cause with the English and French, sharing with them the burden of the war, as they certainly will claim to share the benefits resulting from it. There is certainly some acerbity of feeling upon this point—none the less strong in the higher circles, because politeness restrains the expression of it. It is not forgotten that while England was, during the last war, shaking the tree, the United States were pocketing the apples; and it was to prevent a like division of labor that the blockade of the river was so strictly enforced.

Mr. Reed will have scope for all his good nature, too, if he manages to keep among the belligerents and yet not be of them. The rebel force is gradually hemming in the city and province from the interior, eager to avenge the cruel slaughter, perpetrated upon them by the Chinese three years ago. The blood of more than 60,000 rebels, executed by order of this same Canton Governor Yeh, calls loudly for revenge; and, no sure as the Cantonese are driven from their strongholds, back upon the rebels, the latter will take fearful revenge for the tortures and deaths inflicted upon their less fortunate predecessors. Should the city yield without a struggle, and throw itself upon the protection of the English, there will be quite a complicated affair—for doubtless, the English force must then hold the rebels in check, and thus come into collision with what will doubtless ere long be the ruling power in China.

From the advance squadron—a part of which is less than a mile from the city—we learn that everything seems quiet within it, and that there seems to be no preparations for defense. The square fort which overlooks the city from the north (and which the English captured during the last war) is evidently well manned, and, so far as Chinese means go, well armed. There is also another fort commanding the water front of the city, which will probably be taken before the gun-boats take up their position. It is currently reported among the Chinese that the inner city is completely mined, and that the English troops will be sent up like sky-rockets. If the city is really mined, there is little doubt but that the bombardment and consequent conflagration will explode everything explodable long before the landing force enters the city. The doom of Canton is sealed—its prestige soon to be lost, and the province which for more than a thousand years has held the palm for bravery and desperate fighting, although the last to yield to foreign encroachment, must admit the hated barbarians within its limits.

Victims of the Attempted Assassination.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times gives the following synopsis of the report of the surgeons who dressed the wounds of the victims:

"The wounds in general are small and not deep. Some are only skin deep, while others descend into the muscles. In general these wounds have but one orifice, which is jagged.—The fragments of the shell by which the wounds were inflicted are angular, with indented edges, and small; some are not larger than a pea others resemble a broken nail or a grain of shot flattened. One remarkable circumstance is the number of wounds received by the same person. Surgeon Larrey counted twenty-seven on the body of one soldier, and twenty on that of a young man who was an innocent spectator in the crowd. The wounds at first caused but little pain,—so little, that several persons seriously wounded were not aware of the fact. A lady arrived from the province, who was dangerously wounded in the face, the arm and the leg, said, thought at first that the explosion was caused by a firework let off in honor of the Emperor. After some days the wounds became extremely irritable, more so than might be expected from their small size.—Some persons who were near the projectiles when they exploded had their bones broken and the interior of their stomachs torn open. One person, who died in the hospital Lariboisere, received a large fragment of a shell in the abdomen. Fortunately such cases are but few. A great number of persons were wounded, not by the projectiles, but by splinters of wood or glass driven with great force against them by the concussion."

In consequence of the numerous Commissioners appointed to take evidence in France and in foreign countries, the trial of the conspirators has been postponed until the end of February.—The Paris correspondent of the London Times says:

Unheard-of efforts are being made by this Government to find out a complicity between the assassins of the 14th and Victor Hugo and M. Charras; but as yet, no proof is forthcoming unless some may be found in the papers seized on your side of the water. Madame Hugo is here now, with one of her sons. They arrived two days since. Young Hugo is resolved to take the oath at once, and present himself to his electors of the third arrondissement, in the place of General Cavaignac. This would be a serious event, and, if the Government can prevent it, of course it will."

Lola Montez on Gallantry.

As many as the building could contain crowded into Hope Chapel last evening, to hear what the bewitching Lola had to say about "gallantry;" and judging by the manner in which the lecture was received, her views on that subject were quite satisfactory. She commenced by observing that the history of gallantry would carry us back to the creation, for she believed the first thing that man attempted to do after he was created, was to make love to woman. The life of the great Jupiter was little else than a history of his gallantries, and, in the service, he was successively turned into a shepherd, a bull, a swan, and a golden shower; and he was not wanting in millions of disciples among Christian men. In the lives of the greatest philosophers and generals—of Alcibiades, Demosthenes, Cicero, Alexander or Napoleon—their gallantry formed no inconsiderable item. The eighth and ninth centuries were the days of chivalry and true gallantry, when the knight swore to uphold the woman's right and not see the widow wronged.—(Applause.) He who could break a lance and could not win a fair lady then, would be considered but half a man. (Applause.) The love for women in those days was considered ridiculously earnest; fickleness would then have been a species of impiety. It was in those days that a damsel had said of her knight who had survived his honor, "I would have loved him better dead than alive;" while another had said in reply to a remark that her knight was ugly, "he was so valiant, so noble, and so brave, I have never had time once to look at his face." (Applause.)—The history of this noble, devoted love, the fair lecturer proceeded to illustrate by the stories and songs of the troubadours—by the tragic story of Cabestra and Maguelie, the story of Madame de Tourais, the devotion of Periz Roget for Emmil Garde, the daughter of the Viscount Emeric. The poetry that characterized the court of Charles II. she considered to exemplify the decline of gallantry, and quoted from Sir Thomas Carew the lines commencing:

"In her fair cheeks the dimples lie," in support of her position. Louis XIV. she considered to be a gallant without being a rose—the most gallant monarch that ever lived, and briefly noticed some of the prominent ladies of his court. In Spain, she said, there still lingered a remnant of the ancient feelings of true gallantry. She had seen the students throw down their cloaks for the ladies to walk over. There was no such thing as genuine gallantry either in France or England. In France it was too fickle, variable and insincere, while in England it was too much a mere flirtation. She thought that John Bull was being waked up by the sudden fortunes made on this side of the Atlantic, and was, in fact, growing to be a shrewd, thrifty, money-getting Yankee. (Laughter.)

A business people had no time for gallantry; they were building railroads, telegraphs, steamships, and constructing schemes of finance. Still it had a sort of gallantry which, perhaps, deserved no higher name than coquetry or flirtation; it made a man follow a woman with attentions which were hollow, fickle and insincere. (Applause.) The modern gallant would fly to procure for his lady her slightest wish—he would discover whenever she had a new dress—be sure to tell her of it, and whisper in her ear that he knew all the other women in the room were jealous of her. (Laughter.) If she was not a strong minded woman, or at least instructed in the arts of the world, and especially in the arts of men, this would do the business for her.—(Great laughter, especially among the gentlemen.) But there was an excuse for her sex, when they were taught that beauty was the sole capital to begin life with. (Applause.) She knew that the All-Seeing Eye would look pityingly upon the scenes of error consequent upon this species of gallantry placed in the path of poor foolish woman. Lord Chesterfield had shamelessly and impertinently once written, "I will own to you, in all secrecy, the confession that my vanity has often made me take great pains to make many women in love with me, if I could, for whose person I would not really give a pinch of snuff." (Laughter.) But this was a game at which women could play about as well as men. (Laughter and applause.) She knew of dozens of men who believed they had made a conquest of some beauty, who would not give a pinch of snuff for three acres of such men. (Laughter.)

These modern gallants swear they loved you to distraction; loved the very ground you walked on; dreamed of you at night and thought of you by day; that your eyes were the stars in their sky, your love the only solace of their life. Now this was all very fine, ladies, but it was an abominable lie. (Laughter.) It was a trap to catch fools in. (Renewed laughter.) No man who loved would go on after that fashion. (Laughter.) In true love there is a diffidence; a natural modesty; a prudence and respect, which never could assume this bold, impudent language of flattery. (Applause.) Ladies need not have any fear that a man who made love in that fashion were going to do himself any harm, or blow out his brains. (Applause and laughter.) In Poland they were so gallant that a lady's shoe was often passed down the table for the gentlemen to drink out of; but they always selected a lady with a pretty foot. (Laughter.) She knew of another instance where a party of gentlemen rode two hours in a storm and that ill. coats could be used to shield a lady. She hoped the time was not far distant when Poland would receive her rights, for if the justice of God had not departed the earth, her wronged and oppressed people would one day again take their place among the nations of the earth. (Applause.) Of the late Emperor Nicholas and his wife she spoke, commending his love for her, and remarking that notwithstanding his gallantries, she had wisdom enough never to annoy them with reproaches or jealousies. (Laughter.) But Poland was surpassed by Hungary, in that Esterhazy has pensioned hundreds of women. Of King Louis of Bavaria, she spoke at some length, extolling his love of art, and his platonic love, remarking that those natures which were too gross to experience the latter could not realize how it could be experienced by others. His negligence of dress she noticed, remarking that in the matter of old coats he would rival a celebrated American editor. (Laughter.) He worshipped beauty like one of the old troubadors. (Applause.)

The United States was too practical a nation to entertain a spirit of gallantry. It required too much leisure. She did not mean that there was not plenty of courting, but the love of the United States seemed to be too much a business. (Laughter.) The gentlemen made love in a truly business-like manner. (Laughter.)—They would manage the heart of a pretty woman as easily as they did the stocks on 'Change—(laughter)—and the panics which they created in the social markets, beat the revulsions of stocks in the regions of business. (Renewed laughter.) She believed that the American was regarded as a dull fellow who could not win the heart of a lady, make a thousand dollars, and start a bank with a million dollars capital before breakfast, (laughter,) and lose his lady, his money and his bank before supper. (Roars of laughter.) But, for all this, there was a great deal of honest love for woman, and our gallants could dive deeper and come up dryer than any other men in the world. (Laughter.) She related the reply of Franklin to Madame Helvetius, when she wished him to postpone his journey for her sake—that he "would postpone his entrance to Paradise from 5 o'clock in the morning till 5 in the afternoon, for the privilege of an hour with such a lady"—and remarked that this could not be extravagant, for there was no extravagance in love; and she had never met a Frenchman who would not postpone any idea of Paradise altogether for the sake of a pretty woman.—N. Y. Herald.

Appointments by the Governor.

John F. Potter of Walworth Co., and Cadwallader C. Washburne of Iowa Co., to be Aids to the Commander-in-Chief, with the rank of Colonel.

A GAS MINE.—Messrs. Barncastle, Tisson & Hunter, who are mining about two miles out of town, put in a blast, when at the depth of forty-nine feet, to open a crevice, and after the smoke had cleared away they went down and found a fissure had been exposed in the rock; which, upon removing the rubbish, evolved a stream of some kind of gas, which ignited upon the application of a light, throwing up a flame about four feet in height and burning with radiating jets and scintillations in a sort of feu de joie.

Upon examination, the fissure seems to enter a sort of opening or cavern, in which can be seen lime formations of incrustations and stalactites. It is suggested west crevice, and indications of a rich opening are apparent. The evolution of combustible gas is a new and unaccountable phenomenon to the miners; and affords a chance for the investigation of some of our scientific savans. —Galena Courier.

A COMPLIMENT TO MR. KNOWLTON.—The Madison Patriot says of the Hon. James H. Knowlton: "This gentleman is performing a herculean task. He is Chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the House, is a member of half a dozen other committees—performs nearly all the laborious duties of the Joint Investigating Committee,—he performs all these duties well and ably, and also gives his attention to many important cases before the Supreme Court. He is everywhere, in all places, and doing all sorts of drudgery pertaining to legislation, is always good natured and affable, and our only query is—of what material is he composed? He must have a cast iron constitution, and can take no notice of night or sleep."

PROGRESS OF LOCOMOTION.

(From the Cincinnati Railroad Record.)

In just half a century, there have been three great eras of locomotion, and these may be strikingly illustrated, by a journey, between Cincinnati and New York. The first of these eras is that of the common road, without any steam.—In the year 1810, there was no steamboat on the Ohio, and we believe no stage coach west of Carlisle, Pennsylvania. If a gentleman would take his family to the "East," (as the other side the mountain was called,) his best way was to go in his own carriage. Then he must have his driver, and go rigged with axe, chain, tar and pistols, for his own convenience and safety. Then, with great diligence, he might arrive in New York, in four weeks, and that would be doing very well. After such a journey as this, it would be absurd to stay less than two or three months; and accordingly, visits of this description, usually occupied four or five months. Such visits also, like the angels, must be few, and far between. Two or three, in a lifetime, must be enough, and those relatives and friends parted by the Alleghanies, were almost parted forever.

The second era of locomotion was the era of the Steamboat. The steamboat, however, could only go where there were steamboats. They succeeded the Ohio, and the Hudson; but, between there was a great land interval, covered with mountains, and their spurs. This interval must be traveled, and as in the meanwhile the Cumberland road had been made; that became the great artery, through which flowed the travel—East and West. A journey then was, by steamboat on Cincinnati to Wheeling, which in 1830 took about three days; then by stage to Baltimore, which was also about three days; then from Baltimore to New York, which might be done in one day. Thus, by traveling night and day in stages, and steamboats, we could in 1832-5, make the journey in seven days, or, in one week. This was a wonderful feat, and when people were told, that one day, the Railroad would take people from Cincinnati to New York, in three days, it was looked upon as one of the dreams of a heated imagination. Such a thing was impossible!

The third era is that of the Railroad, in whose day we live. While we are in this day of wonders, will any one say it is impossible to do more? Perhaps it is; perhaps not. We now make the journey from Cincinnati to New York in about thirty hours, (not days,) being less than one-twentieth part of the time required in 1810!

But one thing we do know, that we could make the journey in half the present time, if it was desirable. We can go fifty miles an hour safely, if we choose. It is 254 miles from Cincinnati to Cleveland. We could make it in five hours. It is 190 miles from Cleveland to Buffalo. We can make it in four hours; and thence, we can make New York in eight hours; and thus, we should only be some 16 or 17 hours in making the whole journey. We could do this safely; but the companies will never undertake it, because it is too expensive. Now let us see what has been gained. Let us compare the actual cost per each person. Thus:

| | Time. | Cost. |
| Journey in 1810 | 28 days | $100 00 |
| " " 1832 | 7 " | 28 00 |
| " " 1848 | 14 " | 20 00 |

We see that the reduction of cost is almost in the same ratio as that of time; and that the constant, and continuing influence of steam, and of improved locomotion, is to diminish both the time and cost of the movement of persons of property. Universal commerce is thus increased and multiplied, as statistics will prove, in even a greater ratio, than the diminution of cost. Let us look one moment at the gain, counting time:

| Gain since 1810 | $80 00 |
| Value of time for a merchant | 78 00 |
| One Month's interest on [say $6,000] | 50 00 |
| One Month's profits | 300 00 |
| Gain | $508 00 |

Each merchant of Cincinnati gains on each business trip to New York, at least $600 00.—It is this immense actual gain and profit to society, by the use of steam on land, which has caused what some call the Railroad fever; but which is really nothing but a grand effort of society to avail itself of all possible gain, by the success of the new element of power and commerce. And, never has there been a grander effort than this of the United States, to cover our new possessions with the Railroad. See the progress!

| In 1835 | 500 miles. |
| " 1851 | 12,800 " |
| " 1858 | 25,000 " |

This 25,000 miles cost, at least seven hundred and fifty millions of dollars.

There may be a Railroad fever; but it is the most fortunate disease that ever occurred, and it will continue and prevail for many years, in spite of any, or all commercial crises. The Nation needs many more Railroads, and will have them.

Arrives the snow, and, driving o'er the fields,
Seizes the mingled pomp of mist and light,
And veils the farm-house at the garden's end.
The sled and traveller stopped, the courier's feet,
Delayed, all sounds shut out, the housemates all
Around the glowing hearth-fire, meekened
In a tumultuous privacy of storm.
Come see the north wind's masonry,
Out of an unseen quarry evermore
Furnished with tile, the architect
Carves his white bastion with projected roof
Round every windward state, or tree, or door,
Speeding, the myriad handed, his wild work
So fanciful, so savage, nought eaves his
Or mumb or proportion. Stocking y,
On coop or kennel he hangs Parian wreathing;
A swan-like form invests the hidden thorn;
Fills up the farmer's lane from wall to wall,
Maugre the farmer's sighs; and at the gate,
A tapering turret overtops the work.
And when his horses are numbered, and the word
Is all his own, retiring, as he were not,
Leaves, when the sun appears, astonished Art,
To mimic in slow structures, stone by stone,
Built in an age, the mad winds night work;
The frolic architecture of the storm.

Emerson.

KEITT—Aw!—It is a nice point with the "chivalry" to resist a blow under all circumstances, and bounce the friends of Keitt claim that Grow did not knock him down, though dozens saw him fall. They claim that Keitt stubbed his toe and fell—backward. This version of the affair by his friends, obviates the point of honor which would oblige him to challenge Grow.

When Keitt apologized to the House, he took particular pains to say that he was not conscious that Grow hit him, though Grow the next moment, in his apology, spoke of the "manly act of self defence," as though he had been practicing it on Keitt, in the affair he was alluding to. Hiawathianish, we should say:

If Keitt thinks he stubbed his toe,
Or if the toe thinks it be stubbed,
They know not well Grow's subtle ways,
For Grow can out and come again.

☞ There are plenty of young gentlemen as well as many old ones whose beards are turning grey, which gives the former a great deal of uneasiness, and exposes the age of the latter. To avoid these little perplexities, we advise such of our readers to use Prof. Wood's Hair Restorative, which will, in the course of a few weeks, change the hair to its natural color. It does not dye the hair like the most of the hair restoratives, but produces a gradual change of color from the roots of the hair to the end, and gives it a fine and glossy appearance. We have seen many persons who have used it successfully, and pronounce it the only invention which has come to their ideas of a cure for grey heads.—We commenced using it about two months since, and if we are any judge of age and beauty, it has made us at least ten years younger; in fact we are beginning to look quite young, and feel very much like getting a young wife. The change is miraculous, and it would be as difficult to find a grey hair now as it would be to find an idea in the head of the Duke of Buckingham. We know several old maids and some young widows, whose locks are just beginning to assume a silvery hue, and who have been talking seriously about resorting to this remedy, and we advise them not to delay any longer. It never fails. St. Louis Herald.
